Reds Have No Control Over Rights Groups: Katzenbach

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Nicholas Katzenbach says the Communist party has no control over civil rights organizations or their leaders.

While the party has attempted to inject itself into the American civil rights movement, he feels, it has been "remarkably unsuccessful in actually influencing any decisions, and certainly has not captured any of the leadership."

Katzenbach expressed himself in an exclusive interview with The Associated Press — his first formal interview since becoming attorney general in February.

He said he expects to present legislation to control the Ku Klux Klan — whose strength he estimates at 10,000 men — within two weeks.

He feels the voting rights bill now before Congress may undergo some strengthening — but no substantial change.

He also is convinced of "a tremendous change in the (racial) climate" in the South and throughout the nation.

A partial transcript of the interview follows:

Q. What form do you expect the legislation to control the Ku Klux Klan to take, and when do you expect to submit it to the President?

A. I think we will have legislation for the President to consider within two weeks. It is difficult to state now exactly what that legislation will be.

In general, this is likely to give federal jurisdiction over the sorts of activities that the Klan has been carrying on, so that we can both investigate and prosecute with fairly severe penalties. I think it is more likely that the legislation will take that form than legislation which treated the Klan similar to the Communist party, which has not been a smashing success over the 15 or 16 years as far as registration is concerned. But I wouldn't preclude that.

Q. Just what kind of organization are you dealing with? How do you rate its effectiveness and influence over the general thinking in the South?

A. I don't think the Klan has much influence over the general thinking of the South at all. I think the evil of the Klan is that it promotes through its members acts of terror and acts of violence.

Q. Do you think the recent Birmingham bombings and bomb scares have been Klan-associated?

A. I would be surprised if they were not.

Q. Have you any idea how big a force you are dealing with?

A. Yes, we have a pretty good idea. The estimated total figure on hard-core Klan membership is 10,000.

Q. What, if anything, do you think was accomplished by the Selma-to-Montgomery march? Would you have advised against it, or did you advise against it?

A. I didn't advise against it. I certainly would not advise against it.

Alabama Stands Alone In Helpless Defiance: Flowers

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—"Alabama apparently stands alone in this hopeless defiance."

That cryptic analysis Saturday from the state's attorney general, Richmond Flowers, underscored a two-year struggle for racial moderation which has incurred the wrath of Gov. George C. Wallace.

"The leaders in Mississippi, and Louisiana, too, are just as much dyed-in-the-wool segregationists as anyone in Alabama," Flowers continued in an interview, "but they are sparing their states what Alabama is going through."

"They are speaking out for moderation. They are profiting from Alabama's mistakes where Alabama once could have profited from theirs."

The big, red-haired attorney general readily conceded that he is risking his political future by taking issue publicly with a governor whose popularity in Alabama must be recognized.

Nevertheless, he said he cannot escape the conviction that "There are three things the people might as well forget."

"Segregation as we know it is gone. Somehow, somehow we have got to face it and adjust to it."

"Secondly, there's the civil rights bill. We have lost that fight."

"And on the matter of federal encroachment, we might as well quit bellyaching. This President and the one before him have let us know they're going to run us."

Instead of defiance, says Flowers, 46, Dothan attorney and former state senator, Alabama should "try to compromise and take this stuff a little at a time and as slow as we can."

"When we resort to defiance, we shoot at us or nothing. When we lose, we lost it all. We gamble everything against nothing."

Flowers' political difficulties with Wallace began on the day both men were sworn into office, Jan. 14, 1963. The incoming attorney general, at his own brief inaugural ceremony, disavowed with the new governor's announced intent to defy any federal court integration order.

(Wallace has since said he has never actually defied the courts.)

King, the civil rights leader who won the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize, announced Thursday that Chicago and four other major cities will be the objects of civil rights drives. His rights campaign has been centered until now in seven Southern states.

Kerner said, "When I think of some struggles in Southern states, I wish some of those governors would begin to understand that all the people must be given an opportunity to realize their potential."

"Prejudice is a great handicap" to the state's economic growth, Kerner said.

Red Germany Warns West

Meet Of Parliament In W. Berlin Will Be 'Dangerous Provocation'

BERLIN (AP)—East Germany warned the Western Allies Saturday international conflicts could erupt if the West German Parliament is allowed to hold a session in West Berlin.

Notes sent to the United States, Britain and France through Czechoslovakia were made public by the East Germans as they went through their third day of harassment of civil traffic on the autobahn, 110-mile highway connecting West Berlin with West Germany.

East German police halted vehicles, apparently seeking to turn back members of Parliament enroute to Berlin.

Traffic backed up for several miles and long delays were reported, with the East German police fingering tediously through documents of travelers on the highway.

In their notes, the East Germans called Wednesday's coming session of Parliament a "dangerous provocation" affecting the life interest of East Germany.

The notes, released by the official East German news agency ADN, demanded that the three Western powers prevent the session and "reject any further attempts by West Germany to establish itself in West Berlin."

The notes claimed the three Western powers are responsible for tolerating the Parliament session in West Berlin and therefore will have to bear the consequences that could result if the meeting is held.

The Soviet Union last week sent a protest to Washington, London and Paris.

To counter Communist harassment along the autobahn West Berlin's Christian Democratic party suggested economic sanctions against East Germany.

The Christian Democrats in West Berlin said in a statement the harassment was a "serious interference with the right of free access to Berlin" and must be answered with counter-measures in connection with the 1960 trade agreement between East and West Germany.

When the so-called interzonal trade agreement was reached, West Germany reserved the right to cancel it in case of interference with traffic on the autobahn.

There was no immediate comment on the demand from the West German government or the Socialists, the country's second most powerful political party.

There has been no comment from the Western Allies on the traffic slowdown.

At Helmstedt, the western end of the 110-mile autobahn, cars and trucks lined up for nearly two miles, causing a delay of about two hours.

Delays of several hours also were being encountered by West Germans crossing to and from East Berlin through the Red wall. East German border guards were causing the slowdown by subjecting cars and trucks to painstaking examinations, including removal of car seats and hubcaps.

The East Germans maintain the West German Parliament has no business in West Berlin, claiming West Berlin is not part of West Germany but is situated on East German territory. West Germany says Berlin is still part of Germany.

The Parliament meeting will be the first here since 1958.

ice office to arrange payment" over what IRS describes as "a reasonable period of time." It added that full payment should be made "as quickly as possible."

—Noted that interest at 6 percent will be charged on unpaid balances.

Many taxpayers face problems in paying their 1964 income tax because insufficient money had been withheld from their wages or salaries.

This is because when the two-stage tax reduction bill was passed last year, the new withholding scale was put into effect at once on the basis of the full reduction which does not become effective until the tax bills for 1965. This was done primarily to inject more spendable income into the economy in 1964.

There was considerable publicity about this and many persons arranged to have employers increase sums withheld. And the IRS sent a notice to all employers pointing out the consequences of underwithholding and asked them to suggest that employees request adjustments in withholding.

IRS Commissioner Sheldon S. Cohen noted "There are a number of taxpayers who in good faith did not make such adjustment. These taxpayers may not have understood the need to do so in their particular case or they may have been unable to make such an adjustment as a result of circumstances beyond their control."

Cohen then concluded: "In such cases, if the taxpayer can demonstrate that the unpaid portion of his tax is due to under withholding and that the immediate payment of the entire balance would result in undue hardship, as distinguished from mere inconvenience, the Internal Revenue Service will attempt to work out arrangements for payment of the balance over a reasonable period of time."

Drive Away Three Red MIGs In Raid On N. Viet Nam Bridges

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—U.S. air raids struck closer to Hanoi than ever before Saturday. U.S. Navy planes wrecked a bridge 65 miles south of the North Vietnamese capital and chased away three Red MIG jets that for the first time offered a feeble challenge.

While 60 planes from the carriers Coral Sea and Hancock were working over the bridge, 50 U.S. Air Force F100s and F105s were damaging another span 15 miles to the south.

The twin strikes brought the conflict ever closer to Hanoi's doorstep. The closest approach previously was an air raid March 15 on Phay Qui, 100 miles south of Hanoi.

Never before had Communist fighter planes challenged U.S. air might and this was not much of a challenge. The Navy said the MIGs made a pass at one U.S. Navy plane, probably fired a few shots, but made off into the haze before American fighters could get into firing position with their deadly side-winder missiles.

The Soviet news agency Tass in a dispatch from Hanoi, said jet fighters of North Viet Nam "engaged American planes for the first time" and as a result of "the coordinated efforts of the Air Force, Navy, antiaircraft units and home guard, 12 American planes were shot down."

Both bridges were on Route 1, the highway leading southward from Red China's frontier through North Viet Nam along the coast and on into South Viet Nam to Saigon.

This is a major supply artery for North Viet Nam and when the day's work was done Route 1 was severed.

During the morning, 30 U.S. fleet carrier planes attacked the 500-foot railroad and highway bridge over the Nam Ma River at Dong Phung. Pilots reported moderate damage but complained they could not see well in the haze.

It was during this operation that the MIGs appeared.

Capt. George H. Whistler, the Navy spokesman, did not say what type of MIGs they were. North Viet Nam is believed to have some old MIG-15s and MIG-17s and there have been reports Chinese Communists have flown some MIGs to Hanoi.

"I don't know if they (the MIGs) fired," Whistler said. "They probably did and missed."

In the afternoon, 30 A1 Sky-raid and A4 jet attack planes returned to the attack on the bridge, dropping 60 tons of 500- and 1,000-pound bombs. This time one span fell into the river and another was badly damaged the spokesman said.

One Navy jet was hit by anti-aircraft fire during the afternoon raid but landed safely at the South Vietnamese base at Da Nang.

North Viet Nam's official Viet Nam news agency claimed "many waves of jet combat planes" plunged "deep into North Viet Nam's territory to wantonly bomb and strafe many places" and 12 were shot down. It said many more were damaged.

At about the same time, Air Force planes flying from Da Nang were bombing a bridge at Thanh Hoa, capital city of a province of more than a million population 80 miles south of Hanoi.

The bridge, known as Ham Rong or Dragon's Mouth, was hit several times but a U.S. military spokesman could not say whether it had been knocked out.

The warehouse stood in the center of the 60 - building grounds, one of the state's two major facilities for the mentally retarded.

An official of the Illinois Department of Mental Health said a westerly wind blew the flames toward an adjacent parking lot, making evacuation of patients unnecessary. The school houses about 5,000 patients, ranging from infants to elderly persons.

"If the wind had been from the other direction, it would have been pretty serious," said Dr. William Sloan, director of the mental health department's division of mental retardation.

The nearby sewing and mending building was drenched as firemen fought the blaze. Damage was confined, however, to the warehouse, which was built in 1898.

LBJ Names Group To Study Closing Of VA Hospitals

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson announced Saturday night the selection of a blue-ribbon committee to study whether 11 Veterans Administration facilities should be closed.

The President said he took this step because "controversy has developed over our decision to close several veterans hospitals and domiciliaries."

He said in a statement released at the White House that hearings in Congress over the proposed closings have produced conflicting statements of fact.

"This week I have personally been reading the reports of these hearings very carefully," the President said, "and I must say they have raised some doubts in my mind about some facilities included in the original order."

Johnson said on some of the hospitals, "the facts are in dispute."

"Much of the testimony is contradictory," he continued. "There is considerable reason to believe that further examination and study are necessary before a final decision is implemented."

Four employees, with a combined total of 137 years of service to the Crawford Lumber company were guests of honor at a dinner Friday night in the city room of Hamilton's restaurant.

Hosts for the event were

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Crawford and Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Crawford Jr. President of the company, Lawrence Crawford, offered grace preceding the meal and spoke afterward briefly tracing the history of the firm from its origin in 1878 as a windmill and watertank manufacturer to its present business of building materials and architectural services.

Citing their unusual tenure records, employed by four generations of the family firm, Crawford commended especially Leslie Franz who started work as a millwright in 1909, and Miss Verna E. Butcher as bookkeeper in 1919.

Their service records were exceeded only by the late John R. Fernandes, who was with the company 60 years.

On behalf of the family, Crawford presented citations and small gifts of appreciation to Franz, Miss Butcher and George Dickerson, who has been with the company since 1947 and to Fred Kearns, with the company since 1948.

Dickerson will continue part-time work, but Mr. and Mrs. Kearns moved from Jacksonville to Beardstown Saturday. Crawford concluded his remarks by expressing the hope that in their retirement, with leisure to pursue their various hobbies, they would continue to "add life to time, not just time to life."

Attending the dinner were Miss Verna Butcher, and her sister, Mrs. Bivin of Girard, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kearns, George Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bray, Al Duren of Virginia, Mr. and Mrs. Farrell Scott Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Sam Whitaker, Don Chamberlain, Steven McCarty and his guest Miss Jane Lukeman.

In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "The envelope, please."

A certified public accountant in white tie and tails hands the envelope to Audrey Hepburn, and she slits it open with her gracefully tapered fingers. She gazes at the message therein and her face warms into a smile.

She announces, "The winner for best performance by an actor is —"

Thus will culminate, Monday at approximately 9 p.m., Pacific Standard Time, the 37th annual awards of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences. The affair has been called a popularity contest, a commercial orgy, a mammoth publicity stunt. It continues to attract worldwide attention.

There has always been much ado about Oscar. The origin of his name is clouded; he may have been dubbed by two-time winner Bette Davis, after the middle name of her first husband. The practice of recognizing the best of screen achievement originated in the final years of silent films, when film makers yearned for their efforts to be rewarded with prestige as well as money.

The gimmick worked. The awards show became Hollywood's biggest night of the year. It continues to be, even though the awards are no longer presented in Hollywood. Scene of the telecast is Santa Monica Civic Auditorium, 12 miles from Hollywood and Vine.

Oscar has paid off not only in prestige, but in cold cash. The value of a major Academy Award to a movie is incalculable.

BERNICE HARVEY IS HOSTESS TO WESLEYAN GUILD

MURRAYVILLE—The March meeting of the Wesleyan Guild of the Murrayville Methodist church was held at the home of Bernice Harvey with 13 members present. Roll call topic was a favorite book of the Bible. Mrs. Marie Hamilton attended as a guest.

The worship service was conducted by Rita Pennell and the program, "We Would See Jesus," was presented by Martha Joseph. Bernice Harvey presented a report.

A mother-daughter banquet will be held at 6:30 p.m. April 30. Tickets are available from guild members.

The spiritual life thought was given by Ida Candler. The meeting was followed by a social hour with refreshments served by the hostess.

ble; some say a million dollars, some say two million. The award can also help stimulate a fortune in added revenues for actors with lasting appeal and sound management. The Oscar has also proved valueless to winners who lacked versatility and judgment.

It is no wonder that film creators place great stake in the golden statuette, which has an actual value of only $60.

The Oscar season in Hollywood lasts 12 months. Even before nominations were announced for the 1964 race, producers, directors and stars were calculating which films, finished or unmade, would afford them the best chance in 1965 contention.

The heavy campaigning for the Oscars begins in December. Eligibility for voting ends Dec. 31, and producers traditionally release many of their award contenders at the holiday season, hoping their product will be fresh in Academy voters minds by nomination time.

The campaign for recognition reaches a crescendo in early February, when the nominations are voted. Members of the academy in each craft vote for their own nominees — actors for actors, directors for directors, etc. All 2,800 members nominate the best pictures.

The nominated films are presented for voters over a four-week period at the academy's theater on the border of Beverly Hills. Conscientious members can view four features a day, and some do. In mid-March ballots go out to members, and they vote in all categories.

The academy reveals nothing about the voting except names of the winners.

After each of the nominated films has been shown twice at the academy theater, the voters mark their ballots. Whether they decide on artistic merit, personal prejudice or studio loyalty, no one knows. The only one who might give a hint is the accountant from Price, Waterhouse who tallies the votes. So far he isn't talking.

On Monday night, he will be handing the envelopes to Audrey Hepburn and other stars, who will proclaim the winners to the television millions and the world beyond. And who will be the fortunate to stumble on-stage and lavish thanks on all and sundry? Here is how it seems to this scarred predictor: Best picture: "Becket," Dr.

Strangelove," "Mary Poppins," "My Fair Lady," "Zorba the Greek."

Choice: It looks like a near-sweep for "My Fair Lady."

Best actor: Richard Burton, "Becket"; Rex Harrison, "My Fair Lady"; Peter O'Toole, "Becket"; Anthony Quinn, "Zorba the Greek"; Peter Sellers, "Dr. Strangelove."

Choice: Rex Harrison, for one of the classic roles of modern theatrical history.

Best Actress: Julie Andrews, "Mary Poppins"; Anne Bancroft, "The Pumpkin Eater"; Sophia Loren, "Marriage, Italian Style"; Debbie Reynolds, "The Unsinkable Molly Brown"; Kim Stanley, "Seance on a Wet Afternoon."

Choice: Julie Andrews, partly as consolation for not getting the "My Fair Lady" film.

Best supporting actor: John Gielgud, "Becket"; Stanley Holloway, "My Fair Lady"; Edmond O'Brien, "Seven Days in May"; Lee Tracy, "The Best Man"; Peter Ustinov, "Topkapi."

Choice: Edmond O'Brien to win his second Oscar.

Best supporting actress: Gladys Cooper, "My Fair Lady"; Edith Evans, "The Chalk Garden"; Grayson Hall, "The Night of the Iguana"; Lila Kedrova, "Zorba the Greek"; Agnes Moorehead, "Hush"; Hush, Sweet Charlotte."

Choice: Agnes Moorehead for a splendid piece of hamming.

The U.S. Navy Band At High School Gym Tuesday, May 4

The famous United States Navy Band will play matinee and evening concerts in Jacksonville on Tuesday, May 4.

Cognizant of their billing, as "The World's Finest," the band will offer their musical best in the Jacksonville high school gym under the sponsorship of the Band Parents' Association.

In 1925, an act of Congress, designated the Washington Navy Band as the permanent official United States Navy Band.

Since that year, they have toured the country dozens of times and played their way into the hearts of millions.

The aged, dust covered log books of early American men-of-war give little data about the evolution of music in the Navy as records are sparse. However, there must have been musicians from the very beginning—as early as 125 years ago.

national figure, but . . . to the United States Navy Band he lives as an historical figure of much significance. His pay, indelibly recorded beside his name, was ten dollars a month.

Following this historic entry, there are many references to Navy Musicians and Navy Bands but evidently they were usually small groups gathered hastily for special occasions.

First Navy Band
In 1838, the Pay Table of the Navy Register (during Martin Van Buren's Presidency) recorded the first Navy Band to receive compensation. This group consisted of a bandmaster, four first-class musicians, and one second-class musician, and was not much larger than a modern string ensemble.

"From small ideas, large institutions take shape"—thus, a small beginning mushroomed rapidly and many bands became a part of the Navy, prior to World War I. Seagoing men liked music. Thus, because many of the Navy officers had the vision to encourage and support the musical effort — BANDS WERE IN SOLID.

Stirring Sounds

When the United States summoned its men to arms in 1917, stirring music was required to cheer the departure and welcome the return of the uniformed thousands. The finest talent of the great symphony orchestras was recruited into the Navy, as the government made every effort to fill the need of sailor, soldier and civilian.

Came the Armistice, and naturally, many of the great bands which had stirred the nation began to disappear as quickly as they had come. As the servicemen returned to their homes, so, too, did many of the musicians who had made Navy music so outstanding. Those who had watched them from the streets, and thrilled to their music in concert halls, began to miss this pattern in their national life.

The Navy Department sensing the need for good music to provide inspiration on the home front and help build spirit and morale in the Navy, turned their thoughts to the Washington Navy Yard (now Naval

'THE WORLD'S FINEST'—The United States Navy Band will appear in concert at the high school gym on Tuesday, May 4, in the afternoon for students and in the evening for adults. Tickets are on sale from the Band Parents' Association at $1.50 and $2.00 for adults and one dollar for students.

Weapon's Plant). The Navy Yard Band — group of 21 musicians, had become a part of official Washington, and were recognized as the logical band to represent the Navy. Thus, by 1923, the Navy Yard Band had been augmented to include 63 fine musicians.

On March 4, 1925, President Coolidge signed a special act of 68th Congress, designating this band as the official band of the United States Navy. Since that day we have had THE UNITED STATES NAVY BAND of Washington, D.C.

ADVICE PAYS OFF

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — When Dewey Young went to work for the railroad, other employees jokingly told him, "Be good to your water boy, he might be your boss some day."

Young retired recently after 42 years with the line, then got bored and applied for a job with the security police here.

He was accepted and went to work for Col. M. L. Gentry, a member of a railroad crew that Young once bossed.

THEIR CHILDREN LOST $22,000 BECAUSE OF MR. B.'S POOR PLANNING

Years ago Mr. B. had made a will in which he gave everything he owned outright to his wife, knowing that she would pass on what remained to their two children. His intentions were good, but his will cost their children $22,000 in unnecessary Federal Estate Taxes. This is how it happened:

The total value of his property came to about $180,000. When Mr. B. died a $3,000 Federal Estate Tax was paid on his property. The tax was relatively low because of the Federal Estate Tax "marital deduction," which in their case amounted to one-half the total, or $90,000.

A few years later Mrs. B. died and a second Federal Estate Tax had to be paid. The property was then worth $177,000 and the tax came to $24,968.

Look what would have happened if Mr. B. had done some "tax planning" when he made his will:

He could have divided the estate into two parts, leaving $90,000 to his wife outright, and placing the other half in trust for her. When he died the same marital deduction of $90,000 would have applied and the tax would still have been $3,000.

When Mrs. B. died, however, only the $90,000 left to her outright would be subject to federal tax, amounting to $3,000. The half left in trust would go to the children free of tax. It would not be considered part of her estate even though she received the income from it and even though the trustee could make principal funds available to her if needed.

Taxes on the estate would have been $6,000 instead of $27,968.

In matters of wills and estates, good intentions are not enough. You need good advice and broad experience as well. That is why it is important to discuss these matters periodically with your lawyer and with one of the experienced trust officers of Elliott State Bank. Your family's future is their business.

Insurance Companies Pay Quarter Billion For Losses In 1964

Incurred claims-losses, adding up to a quarter billion dollars for Illinois alone last year, are building economic pressure to the explosion point against casualty insurance companies, downstate Illinois motorists were told Wednesday night.

Paul Powel of Jerseyville, district sales manager for the Country Companies of Bloomington, told the Lions club of Jacksonville that despite gains in highway engineering, driver education and law enforcement, loss totals for this state and the entire nation are "out of hand."

The Country Companies' official was speaking for the Illinois Insurance Information Service, reflecting the disastrous 1964 loss experience of the 24 principal Illinois-based casualty companies which write the insurance for about three out of four private cars in this state. On basis of still incomplete figures, 1964 has shaped up, said Powel as the most disastrous loss year for automobile underwriters since the rock-bottom 12-month period of 1957.

Before Lions Club The insurance official appeared before a Lions' dinner at Dunlap Motor Inn, Jacksonville, presided over by Fred Meyers, president of the service group.

"Total incurred losses paid by all companies doing business in Illinois in 1963 — last year for which figures are complete — from automobile damages and injuries, amounted to $251,766,205 — over a quarter billion dollars in one year in a single state," he said.

"Those losses were up almost exactly $1,000,000 a month, each month of the calendar year," he said, adding that "figures for 1964 indicate that a new record of about $260 million for losses in Illinois almost certainly was established in the year just ended."

Powel told the Lions how heavy losses from floods of legitimate claims are being compounded by a widening attitude by some of the public that any accident represents an opportunity to collect heavily from insurers regardless of the merits and justice of the claim.

"Soak-The-Company" Even though almost half of all personal injury cases tried to verdict each year in Illinois result in outright rejection of claims and acquittal of the defendant and his insurance company, he said, some juries — especially downstate — have adopted a "soak-the-rich insurance-company" approach.

"At one time, downstaters generally accepted the belief that Cook county was the locale of personal injury court verdicts of stunning size," Powel said. "You may be surprised at the new facts—downstate juries on the average this court term have been handing down personal injury awards greater than juries in Chicago and Cook county—just about $8,000 per verdict greater."

"Apparently, the word has not come through in some downstate communities that the dollars to pay staggering awards can come only from one source—right out the pocket of the average man who drives a car and his neighbor next door," he said.

Cost Based On Claims "It's as simple as two plus two makes four," he continued. "Your insurance rates are established by the average amount of paid-out claims in the rating territory in which you live, plus the cost of administration of these funds by your insurance company—and those figures also apply, of course, to your own Jacksonville community."

"It is a matter of statistical fact that the bulk of each dollar you pay for your insurance protection is paid back by the companies in the form of settlement of claims. So when the cost of paid-out claims is jacked up by fraud, swindling, or other questionable tactics, the cost of your insurance must inevitably go up," Powel concluded.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market volume dried up to the smallest in five months as prices went through another hesitant week.

On the basis of averages and other indicators, the week was pretty much of a standoff.

The Dow Jones industrial average produced a small gain of 1.72 at 893.38. In mild conflict with this, The Associated Press average of 60 stocks eased 1.1 to 333.6, its third straight weekly decline.

Of the 1,530 issues traded last week, however, 708 rose and 824 fell — not a very convincing verdict for the upside, but it was there, nevertheless.

Once again, the "market" — meaning the whole roster of stocks — did somewhat better than the averages. This meant that traders and investors were picking up secondary issues while they were selling or ignoring the blue chips which make up the averages. This was not 100 per cent true, but it seemed to be the general trend.

A glittering exception to the rule was General Motors, which advanced 1 1/2 to 101 3/4. On the other hand, traders went for some very low-priced issues, and this did not indicate a very solid market tone.

The sharp drop in volume seemed to detract from any real importance market-wise. Volume was 23,179,101 shares compared with 25,612,950 the previous week. This was the lowest volume since the week ended Oct. 31, 1964 when turnover was 23,154,970 shares.

Analysts saw market uncertainty linked with the Viet Nam situation, the international monetary outlook and the steel labor negotiations.

As the income tax deadline of April 15 approached, another market factor became increasingly important. This was the fact that many taxpayers and investors are finding that they owe the federal government substantial sums because of under withholding of income during 1964. This is leading to a certain amount of selling of stock to meet tax payments, analysts said, and is likely to lead to more of the same the closer the tax deadline is.

Bond markets were quiet most of the week, but investors were keeping a close eye on developments in international finance. Many investors in U.S. Treasury securities pulled out of the market pending introduction tion next Tuesday of the British labor government's budget.

Corporate bond volume for the week totaled $45.92 million, compared to $53.68 million a week ago.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for slaughter steers became irregular this week as cattle offerings increased slightly in Chicago but decreased at the 12 major terminals.

Offerings of choice grade and below finished the week steady to 25 cents a hundredweight lower while high choice and prime over 1,150 lbs were 25 to 50 cents higher.

The supply at the 12 markets was the smallest in more than 10 years but buyers said that probably was because of unsettled labor conditions at some major markets.

The average price for steers for the week was little changed, averaging about $24.20 compared with $24.14 last week and $21.21 a year ago.

The supply of butcher hogs for the week was the smallest in more than two months but prices were not better than steady at the close with some weights 25 cents lower. It was only the second lower trend in the past six weeks. Buyers noted, though, that prices of most cuts in the carlot pork trade weakened somewhat.

Woolled slaughter lambs sold as much as 50 cents higher and topped at $26.50, highest for that class in 11 years.

Charged In DWI, Leaving Scene, After Accident

A Jacksonville man was charged with driving while intoxicated and failure to do duty after striking an unattended vehicle about 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Paul R. Phelps, 56, of 947 East College Avenue was arrested after he reportedly missed a driveway near his home on East College.

Witnesses said Phelps backed into a parked car in the South Sandy Street parking lot and hooked bumpers. Phelps left black marks in an attempt to unhook the bumpers and later drove toward his home. Police received the call at 7:27 p.m. and arrested the driver less than three minutes later.

The accident caused minor damage to both the truck Phelps was driving and the struck car which was owned by Mrs. Gerald Pennell of 509 North Diamond.

City police issued both tickets and lodged Phelps in city jail overnight, pending court appearance next week.

Reds Have No Control Over Rights Groups

I think two things were accomplished. Public attention was focused on the problems of the Negroes in respect to voting registration and other problems.

The second thing I think was accomplished was to demonstrate in Alabama the solidarity of the feeling, not simply of Negroes and active civil rights workers, but ministers, labor officials, and just plain citizens who traveled from all over the country to Selma, at their own expense, to stand up for what they thought was right.

Q. I would like your opinion of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s proposed economic boycott of Alabama. Do you think it would run afoul of any antitrust law?

A. I think it is terribly hard to comment on an economic boycott of that kind until you know what Dr. King has in mind.

But in the absence of his resolving some problems that I don't know how he would resolve, I would think an economic boycott of that kind would run the danger of hurting all people in Alabama — including those you are trying to help.

Legislative Diner Sports New Look In Capitol Building

By DICK EMERY

SPRINGFIELD—A Chicago food service firm has taken over operation of the legislative dining room in the Capitol Building here, and already has doubled the seating area and changed the menu choices for the first time in several sessions.

United Food Service, a division of Interstate United Corp., began operating the dining room March 15, after Secretary of State Paul Powell awarded them the contract as the best of seven bidders. The firm also operates the cafeteria in the basement of the State Office Building.

The dining area, located at the south of the legislative lounge, had seating space for only 88 persons. Now, it will accommodate 154, according to Mrs. Doris Grigiski, hostess at the dining room.

A Busy Spot

The dining room is open only on legislative session days, and when both houses adjourn at the same time, the dining room is deluged with lawmakers. With its limited table space and small staff of waitresses, senators and representatives had to wait in line for their lunch.

Several grumbled, so United's management got together with Sen. Paul Broyles, R-Mt. Vernon, chairman of the Senate affairs committee, and the plan to increase table space was adopted.

Some of the furniture had to be removed from the lounge to make room for the extra tables. It was moved to the governor's office to replace some older furnishings which are out being recovered.

Unused tables were brought in from the Fairgrounds, draped with attractive linen tablecloths, and set on the rich orange carpets of the lounge.

Menus Changed "We diversified our menus right away," Mrs. Grigiski said, "to make them more appealing."

For many sessions, the dining room menu had the same standard items each day throughout the session: Ham, steak, roast beef, turkey and ground beef sandwiches.

But not so now. Although there are fewer choices on the daily menu, each day's bill of fare changes, and there are enough varieties so that the same items appear together on the menu only about once in four weeks, Mrs. Grigiski advises.

The new menus still have two sandwiches and ground beef standard items — sirloin steak sandwiches. Variable items include ham and sweet potatoes, beef and noodles, and roast pork. During the Lenten season, French fried scallops, shrimp, and halibut steak are also featured.

"We even redesigned the menu card," Mrs. Grigiski said. "Now the patron marks his choice on the individual menu, the waitress uses it for a food order in the kitchen, and then the customer carries it to the cashier as a guest check."

"This expedites ordering and serving food, and eliminates chance for errors both in serving and charging," she said.

Award Contract On Bid

The operating contract was awarded United on its agreement to run the facilities on a five per cent of gross receipts basis plus a one per cent management fee. Bids ranged from United's six per cent up to nine from Croty Bros., Inc.

The dining room, along with the cafeteria, is operated by the Secretary of State under a contract with United to manage them. United receives its flat six per cent of total sales, and profit or loss in the operation is absorbed by the state.

Gross sales last year amounted to $211,488 for the cafeteria operation (the legislature was not in session, and the lounge dining room was not open).

Powell said the return to the state would have been $13,000 higher last year if the eating facilities had been operated under this flat fee contract.

In 1964, state income from the cafeteria and vending machine operations totaled $2,965, Powell stated.

"We're running mighty close to food costs with this one per cent fee," reports Harold J. Stillwell, food service manager. "We'd like to operate on a profit-sharing basis," he added, "but we are more interested in providing a good meal for the money than a big return on our investment."

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Carl Bain of Granite City and Mrs. William Burton of Patterson; two sons, James Rhodes of Romulus, Mich., and Russell of Patterson; one brother, Ewell of Belltown; twelve grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

The body was taken to the Mackey Funeral Home at Roodhouse. Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

PLAN CONSTRUCTION SOON AFTER JUNE 1

Many questions are being asked about the date construction will begin on the new industrial arts — vocational education building for District 117. The architect has assured the administration that plans and specifications will be ready to send to prospective bidders within two weeks. If thirty days are allowed to contractors for submitting bids, then construction should begin soon after June 1.

The new school safety code has slowed the preparation of plans and specifications by the architect and engineering firm since every item must be carefully checked for compliance.

Present plans call for the new building to be occupied on the opening of school in September, 1966.

Mrs. William Joseph Winslade

Ann Garry And Carlinville Man Exchange Vows

In the presence of friends and relatives Miss Ann Garry of this city became the bride of William Joseph Winslade of Carlinville in a ceremony performed at five o'clock Saturday afternoon, March twenty-seventh, at the Central Christian church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Garry of Jacksonville and the groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Winslade of Carlinville.

The candlelighted altar was decorated with white snapdragons and daisies. The single ring service was performed by the Reverend William Sturges, pastor and Dr. J. Stafford Weeks, associate professor of Bible and religion and former Chaplain at Monmouth College.

Robert Reeves, graduate student in music at Northwestern University and friend of the couple, presided at the organ for the nuptial prelude.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the lovely bride wore an ivory floor length sheath cut gown of Italian silk lined with semi-train. Her mantilla was of Belgian lace and she carried a bouquet of white cymbidium orchids and stephanotis.

Mrs. James L. Green of Oak Park, the former Cathy Crawford of Jacksonville, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a conventional length sheath cut dress of rose Dupioni silk with matching silk slippers and headress. Her cascade bouquet was of pink sweetheart roses.

Larry Clark of Carlinville attended the groom as best man. Ushers were Bruce R. Nyland, Columbus, Ohio; Robert Adudell, Des Plaines, Illinois; Steven Ellis, Evanston, Illinois and Alan F. Leritz and Kenneth Schwartz, both of Carlinville.

The bride's mother wore a moss green costume suit of Cupion silk with matching shoes and purse. Her hat was fashioned of white valley lilies and her corsage was of white cymbidium orchids. The groom's mother wore a jacketed sheath dress in honey beige brocade with matching hat and deeper beige accessories. Her flowers were green cymbidium orchids.

The parents of the bride entertained guests at a buffet and reception at the Holiday Inn following the church ceremony. Assisting with courtesies were the Misses Mary Ann Schnell, St. Louis, Mo. and Marcia Lohner, LaGrange, Illinois, college roommates of the bride; Constance Carlson, Decatur, Ill.; Kay Kirk of New Castle, Pennsylvania; Patricia Bradley and Janet Schroeder, both of Jacksonville.

The newlyweds are making their home at 2011 Maple avenue in Evanston, Illinois.

The bride graduated from Jacksonville High School in 1961 and finished studies for her B.A. degree at Monmouth College in early March. At Monmouth she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma, social fraternity and several honorary societies. She will begin graduate study in philosophy at University of Chicago this summer. Mr. Winslade attended Carlinville schools and graduated cum laude from Monmouth in 1963. His social fraternity was Sigma Phi Epsilon and he held membership in Blue Key honor fraternity. He has completed requirements for his M. A. degree from Northwestern University where he is in his second year of graduate study in philosophy. He expects to receive his doctorate in June of 1966.

Among the out of town relatives attending the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garry and Mrs. E. A. Dillon of Garden City, N.Y.; Mrs. Larry Shine of New York City, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Hicks and Mr. and Mrs. John Farris of Rocky Mount, N.C.; Miss Petty League of Louisville, Ky.; Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Proper dental care is not just a toothpaste or toothbrush manufacturer's dream. Dentists point out that good oral hygiene begun early saves money and misery in later years.

Mrs. Carol Alpha DeGroot

Dorothy French, Carol DeGroot Wed At Ebenezer

The Ebenezer Methodist church was the scene Sunday afternoon, March twenty-eighth, for the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Dorothy Jean French and Carol Alpha DeGroot, both of Jacksonville.

John McLamar, uncle of the bride, gave her in marriage during the ceremony performed by the Reverend Jack Tharp.

The candlelighted altar of the church was banded with white gladioli, fugi mums and greenery. Ricky and Larry Gibbs, nephews of the bride, lighted the tapers at the altar during the prelude.

The former Miss French is the daughter of Mrs. Sylvia French, 901 Beesley avenue and the late Merle French. Mr. DeGroot is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Alpha DeGroot, 509 South Kosciusko street.

Mrs. John Hadden presided at the church organ for the nuptial prelude and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Richard Jackson.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Marvin Gibbs, was matron of honor and the groom's sister, Mrs. Carl Alderson, was bridesmaid. Little Donna Jo Gibbs, niece of the bride, was flower girl and Ricky Samples, cousin of the groom, was ring bearer.

Larry DeGroot attended his cousin as best man and Harland DeGroot, Jr., another cousin, was groomsman. Ushers were Norman DeGroot and Charles DeGroot.

The bride wore a full length formal gown of white brocade satin, designed and fashioned by her maternal aunt, Mrs. Martha Upchurch. Her shoulder length veil of illusion fell from a pearl crown headdress and she carried a cascade of white Marguerite daisies with English ivy.

Both of the bride's attendants wore poude blue satin gowns with conventional length skirt-line. Their hats matched their costumes and each carried a cascade of white Marguerite daisies.

The mother of the bride wore a blue lace ensemble and a corsage of white cluster mums. Mrs. DeGroot chose a yellow knit suit with a corsage of the same flowers.

At the reception held in the church following the ceremony the following friends assisted, Mrs. Eddie DeGroot, Miss Donna Piercy, Mrs. Robert Houston, Mrs. Farrell Hansmeier, Mrs. Martha DeGroot and Mrs. Norman DeGroot.

Editorial Comment

At State Institutions

Prevailing Wages Abuse

Another effort has been launched in the Illinois legislature to end the prevailing wage abuse that has added immeasurably to the cost of state government and in recent years has seriously crippled the mental health program.

Previous efforts in this field have been defeated, but each session the need for such legislation increases as the cost of government steadily mounts and it becomes ever more important that the greatest maximum value be obtained from the spending of every tax dollar.

Nowhere has the prevailing wage abuse been more damaging to the people's interest than in the mental health program. Despite intensive efforts of two state administrations, one Republican and one Democratic, advances in the care and treatment of those mentally ill have come only very slowly.

A big drawback has been the exorbitant salaries that the state is forced to pay for routine maintenance work at its institutions. The huge drain on tax dollars has soaked up countless dollars that could have been constructively spent in treating the mentally ill.

The absurdity has frequently been pointed out of instances at some state hospitals where plumbers, carpenters and electricians are paid more than doctors and psychiatrists. Such a wage policy, reflected in all levels of the mental health employment rolls, does little to attract and hold those highly educated and trained people whose value to the program is far greater than any building can ever be.

The new bill before the House is an exceedingly fair one and would still provide that craftsmen would be highly paid in their maintenance duties. Under the bill they would still be paid 75 per cent of the prevailing union scale for their craft in their particular locality.

It should be remembered that prevailing wages are those which contractors pay their employees for chiefly construction season activities. They are based on an assumption that tradesmen will not be employed steadily the year around. Employees at state institutions, however, do work 52 weeks a year and enjoy vacations and other benefits.

The current bill has bipartisan sponsorship. Sponsors include eight Republicans and six Democrats. Included among its sponsors are several legislators who have long been concerned with the mental health program and the need for assisting it by ending the prevailing wage abuse.

It is indeed time that the administration and the legislative leaders of both parties face up to the problem, resolution of which would be a big step forward to easing the financial squeeze in state government. (Illinois State Journal)

Red Rights Threat

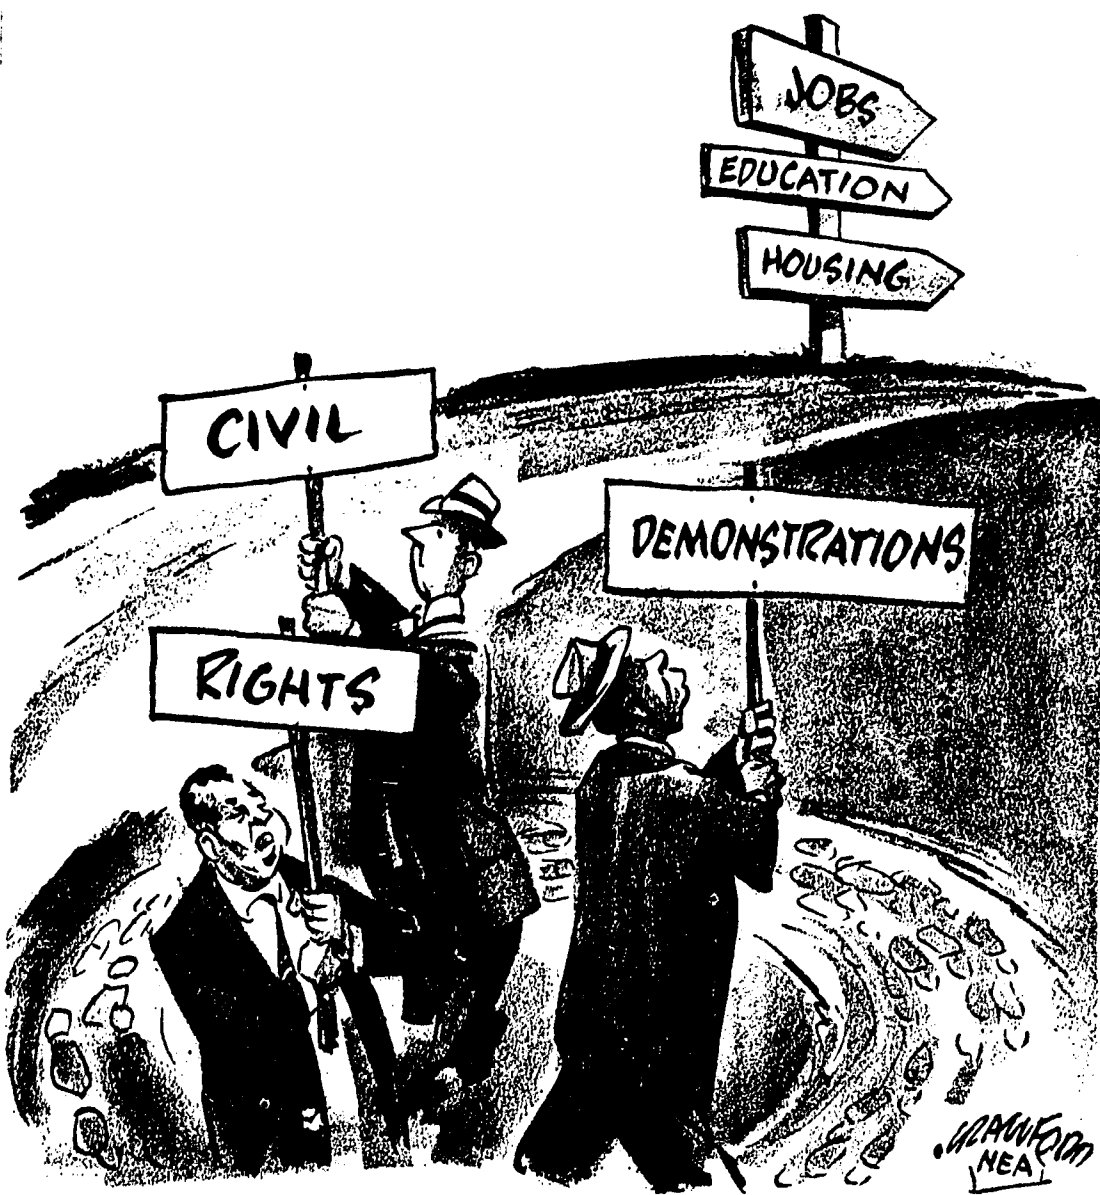

Communist attempts to infiltrate and dominate the civil rights movement reportedly have become so intensive that the administration is seriously concerned. There is good reason for such concern, both because of the danger of Communism and because of the tragic threat that such infiltration would hamstring the legitimate drive of the Negro toward equal rights.

Both of these dangers can be averted if federal officials and civil rights leaders fully recognize the problem and maintain the alertness that it demands. It is gratifying to learn that efforts along exactly these lines are under way. There is concern at the highest level of government. Key civil rights leaders have been pointedly warned of the danger and urged to be careful about the bona fides of those whose advice they accept.

Thus far the civil rights movement appears to have been largely free of Communist penetration, though some segments of the movement show signs of such a taint. What officials properly fear, however, is that as the impetus grows the Reds will make an even more intensive effort to maneuver events in their favor. There also is anxiety lest the Communists use the interest of college students in the civil rights movement as an opening wedge for campus influence.

It is sensible to entertain these fears. It is even more sensible to act on them, not in alarmist ways but by sharpening alertness to Communist efforts. This is being done, and there appears to be an excellent chance that the Reds will be headed off before they can do much damage.

WASHINGTON (NEA) —

White House press secretary

George Reedy's new assistant,

that his new job was a lot stiffer-paced than his press agency for the Budget Bureau,

a quiet backwater.

The first week he was in the White House, Laitin dared to keep a luncheon date he had made long before.

"While I was at the restaurant

I had two urgent telephone

Pennsylvania Republican

When the Republicans' new recently in the capital, the conference table included one former national chairman

This circumstance caused one

The recipients' secretaries will check off their lists and mail return cards. Our secretary will then check off her list and ev-

"But nobody except the secretaries ever see either card."

Another senator's aide says his office sends 20 or 30 Senate calendars—regarded as "pre-a special list every year. This

"Unfortunately, we hadn't

In Hollywood

By JAMES BACON
AP Movie-TV Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Mitzi Gaynor is one of the movies' most talented stars — and a major box office draw. Yet she makes only one picture every two years or so. Why?

"I love movies," says the shapely Mitzi. "There's nothing I would sooner do — but I make more money in the round."

In the round means theater in the round — one of show business' newest and most lucrative forms.

Currently Mitzi's show is playing in San Carlos, Calif. Next week she opens at Melodyland near Disneyland.

Going in on a percentage, she will make about the same money she makes in Las Vegas, Nev. — approximately $40,000 a week.

Only Elizabeth Taylor, among the top feminine stars, makes more per week in the movies. "At those prices," says Mitzi, "I can't afford to make a movie unless the script is sensational."

Since her big hit in "South Pacific," Mitzi has had a couple of disastrous experiences. She did two comedies with big budgets, good scripts and top directors.

Mitzi was great in both, but her leading men, though superb actors, never were meant for comedy — Yul Brynner and Kirk Douglas.

As a result the movies bogged.

"I'm looking now for a script with either Rock Hudson or Cary Grant," she says. "Every leading man wants to try comedy but not everyone can master it."

"I had a chance to do 'Bed-time Story' opposite Marlon Brando. I couldn't see him as a bundle of laughs, so I turned it down. The critics proved I was right."

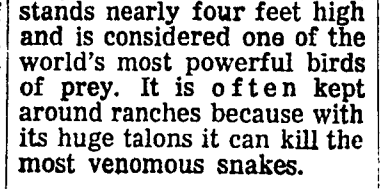

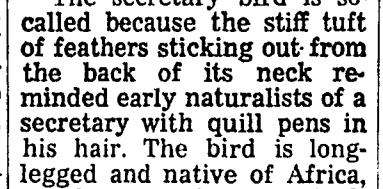

"Comedy is, by far, the hardest thing to do. There are only a few who can master it. By the way, add Jack Lemmon to my list."

Meanwhile, Mitzi gets her laughs going to the bank.

FINDING THE WAY

Bible and Understanding

BY RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Some few years ago two men were riding the train from Moscow to Paris. In this European compartment six persons sat staring at one another. Of these six, one was a Russian who was reading a little book. As the rough but somewhat rhythmic motion of the train assaulted his body, he began to be sleepy.

dozed and the book slipped from his hands to the floor. Across from him sat a Frenchman who retrieved the book and then recognized that it was a Bible.

He couldn't speak Russian nor could he read the language

but the markings were unmistakeable. Quickly he reached into his duffel bag on the ledge

Bible. Returning the first book to the now-awake Russian, he pointed to his French version.

He opened to the 23rd Psalm.

The Russian did likewise. They read and they smiled. The Russian pointed to the 13th Chapter of First Corinthians. The Frenchman did the same. In this fashion they communicated with one another, spending hours reading without speaking, conversing without sharing one another's language.

This little story of Andre

Rosser is a parable of our contemporary need. Everywhere we've lost communication.

Parents lose it with their children. Neighbors lose it with other neighbors. Mobs threaten embassies; wars are prophesied, and angry words are shouted.

We stare at one another or glower at one another while the train of circumstances

jostles us against one another.

With our communications broken, can we find a common treasure through which we can find an understanding and a common search for truth?

The Civil War -- 100 Years Ago

To Girls State

A Grand Good Time

Tuesday, April 4, 1865, was the wildest day in the history of Jacksonville. Everybody celebrated the news of the fall of Richmond with excitement and racket. It was a day of jubilation, for the people had long connected Richmond with the Confederacy and felt that its fall meant the end of the war.

In this they were more correct than the politicians and generals, both North and South. Hence the "jollification" a hundred years ago today was much livelier than when Lee surrendered his army to Grant April 9. And when Johnston threw in the sponge to Sherman April 26 the celebration here was a most mild affair.

T. Rice Smith, telegraph operator and ticket agent at the Union depot, got the news of the fall of Richmond on April 3 that the Union army had occupied Petersburg. Smith and Lee's army had been forced to flee Richmond. Smith and other strong Unionists took the message of great news with more than a grain of salt. They had celebrated such dispatches before, only to learn later that they were entirely or mostly false.

G. Price Smith, editor of the JOURNAL, explained the hesitancy to believe the good news. A dispatch was received in the city on Monday to the effect that Richmond had been taken by our forces that morning at 8 o'clock. So often have our citizens been deceived by canards, and tempted thereby into premature demonstrations of joy, only to be laughed at by the heartless copperheads, that on this occasion they smothered their emotions until something more reliable could be known.

The report was confirmed Tuesday morning. "By 10 o'clock the streets were alive with anxious, excited, joyous throngs," Smith wrote, "and the Court House square was made the centre."

The big wheels in town immediately attempted to set up the customary speaker's stand on the east side of the courthouse, which then stood in the southwest quarter of Central Park. But the crowd was in no mood to listen to speeches.

"The enthusiastic multitude, becoming wild with joy, broke forth in the most indescribable demonstrations of uproarious, wild, almost frantic enthusiasm, setting at defiance all efforts at system, order or arrangement," commented Editor Smith, who dearly wanted to make a speech befitting the occasion.

Finally, late in the afternoon, he got his wish but not at the customary spot. Instead he had to talk from an unopened box parked in front of Hamilton's dry goods store at the northwest corner of the square.

Canon and Bells Immediately after the good news was confirmed the cannon, which sat about where the flag pole in the park now stands, began booming and it didn't quit until 11 p.m. The church bells rang and the one in the new Congregational church belfry—which happened to be the first church bell in town, was cracked wide open and completely ruined early in the afternoon.

The members of the German Silver Cornet band hurriedly assembled at the engine house of Jacksonville Fire Company No. 1 on West Morgan street. The fire ladders in their new helmets and red flannel shirts got out their pumper and their hook and ladder cart and paraded around the square, followed by "hundreds of people."

The cannon, loaded with black powder wadded by wet newspapers, boomed throughout the day. About 9 p.m. a novice at the business didn't put in enough powder and the wad was blown through a window on the east side of the square. The owner of the building complained quite a bit, so the cannon was turned around, recharged by the same man, and the wad went through a second story window of the bank of M. P. Ayers & Co. on the west side of the square.

The novice was replaced by a more experienced powderman and everything went along in fine shape. "By eleven o'clock the crowd had dispersed, but many still held revel in various parts of the city away past midnight, and until the dawn. Thus was the fall of Richmond celebrated in Jacksonville. The like of it has never before been witnessed here, and must long be remembered as one of the gala days of our city," Editor Smith concluded.

magic. All business houses, with the exception of four "drinking saloons" on the square, closed for the day. The Provost Guard (a 60 man detachment from Camp Butler) and the Home Guards turned out in full uniform, marched around the square a couple of times and "fired volley after volley of salutes."

Farmers Come In Country people, their horses lathering, flocked into town and joined in the celebration.

By 2 p.m. the speakers got in business. The Provost Marshal, Capt. G. W. Hamilton of Carlinville, led off with a resounding patriotic address. He was followed by Col. James Matheny of Springfield, who just happened to be in town.

Rev. William J. Rutledge, chaplain of the 14th Illinois regiment, was the next speaker. The good Rev. was a long ways from his uniformed charges, who were in Goldsboro, N. C., that day.

Rev. James Semple, pastor of the Jacksonville East Methodist circuit, mounted the dry goods box next and talked for a half hour or so, and he was followed by Capt. Thomas Bryant, former pastor of the Greenfield Methodist church who had organized Co. D of the 14th Infantry regiment, but had found the army little to his liking and resigned after serving six months.

Resounding Oratory So far the army and the Methodists had been in charge of the platform, but finally Editor Smith got possession of the box, and he was followed by impatient and eager orators who talked and talked, although their remarks were often interrupted by noisy parades and the intermittent boom of the cannon, as long as there was anybody on hand paying any apparent attention to them.

Late in the afternoon the Home Guards, commanded by Capt. A. M. Pilcher, visited the Methodist Female College. They were warmly greeted. The girls sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and Dr. Adams delivered a patriotic address, but choked up when he mentioned his son, Lt. Charles, who had been killed near Jackson, Miss., in 1863, and was unable to finish his address. The girls then sang "The Red, White and Blue."

The guards moved across the street to the mansion of U.S. Senator Richard Yates "for three cheers and as many volleys of musketry." The guards returned to the square, marched around it a couple of times and headed to the Presbyterian Female Academy. When they got there they fired off a salute, but nobody appeared at the windows and nobody came out to greet them. They were puzzled and didn't know what to think of it, for the Academy had the reputation of being lively Union enthusiasts.

So they went back to the square. Why the Guards were not received was well explained in a letter signed "Academy Girl" which appeared in the next issue of the JOURNAL. She said all the girls were "out on the square or in the streets participating in the personal rejoicing and hence were not at home to return the patriotic salute of the Guards."

This explanation was received earlier by the Guards and soon after sunset they made a second trip to the Academy where they were wildly cheered. The girls sang two patriotic numbers and Prof. Mitchell responded with appropriate remarks.

Everybody Here At night "all the inhabitants of the county seemed to be on the square," Editor Smith wrote.

"Great bonfires of deal boxes and tar barrels were set at each corner of the square; rockets and fireworks were shot from all parts of the city."

The cannon, loaded with black powder wadded by wet newspapers, boomed throughout the day. About 9 p.m. a novice at the business didn't put in enough powder and the wad was blown through a window on the east side of the square. The owner of the building complained quite a bit, so the cannon was turned around, recharged by the same man, and the wad went through a second story window of the bank of M. P. Ayers & Co. on the west side of the square.

The novice was replaced by a more experienced powderman and everything went along in fine shape. "By eleven o'clock the crowd had dispersed, but many still held revel in various parts of the city away past midnight, and until the dawn. Thus was the fall of Richmond celebrated in Jacksonville. The like of it has never before been witnessed here, and must long be remembered as one of the gala days of our city," Editor Smith concluded.

A Beautiful Day April 4, a hundred years ago, was a beautiful day, with white clouds skimming through the sky, a high of 74, and a delightful breeze from the southwest.

A gentleman farmer living in the southwest of Athens always recalled the events of the day in his diary before he knelt at his bedside and said his prayers at 9 p.m. He wrote: "Jacksonville is certainly celebrating the glorious news of the day. It did."

From A 1928 Notebook

In the summer of 1928 the writer interviewed more than 40 Civil war veterans living in Morgan county. Here are some jottings from the notebook:

UPRIGHT, Robert Co. H, 57th Pennsylvania Infantry, "The Old Hancock Veterans," Jacksonville.

A "blue-bellied Yankee" born in Portland, Maine. Was a blacksmith at a coal mine in Pennsylvania when he enlisted. In battles of 2nd Bull Run and Gettysburg. After war came to Auburn, Sangamon county, to work as blacksmith in the coal mine being developed there.

Married a widow in Auburn. "Her father, husband and three brothers had been in the Confederate army so you might say I've been fighting the South all my life."

Recalls picket duty south of Washington. "Hey, Yank, I won't shoot if you don't." "Suits me, Johnny, got any tobacco on you?" "Sure, I'll swap you some for a little coffee." "Stick your gun in the ground and I'll meet you half-way."

"Sure I enjoyed army life. There wasn't any worry to it and I was young enough not to care what the next day brought. Sometimes we had good times; then again times were hard, especially when our supply wagons were held up. But when they did arrive we drew back-rations and really feasted for awhile."

"We always cursed hardtack, but still it came in handy at times. One of the things I'll always remember is that I lived on them for seven days in a stretch, and along about Friday they began tasting pretty good. We didn't have another durned thing to eat."

SWALES, George Washington, Co. F, 155th Illinois, next to last regiment formed in the state during the war. Only 16 when he enlisted Feb. 24, 1865. Assigned to guard duty along Nashville and Chattanooga railroad line in Tennessee, mustered out Sept. 4, 1865.

Born in a two-room log cabin near the north side of the square, a son of James and Judith Swales, emigrants from England. James was the acknowledged king of well diggers in this section.

Was an apprentice printer at the SENTINEL when he enlisted. Returned late in 1865, worked for SENTINEL, its successor, ENTERPRISE, and its successor, COURIER. With latter more than 25 years. Didn't take a vacation in 24 months. Made one trip to Kansas City and out of the county three times after return from army.

A very skilled compositor and much of the intricate work was assigned to him. "I certainly didn't do much in the army. Really nothing at all."

BARR, L.A. 2nd Massachusetts Heavy Artillery, Litchberry.

Born near Virginia, Cass county, Sept. 19, 1845. His parents didn't care much for Illinois and moved back to Massachusetts. After war he returned to Illinois and settled near Litchberry. Active in Arcadia Lodge No. 92, I.O.O.F., and traditionally presides at the Memorial Day exercises at Arcadia church cemetery.

Did some scout duty during war, but mostly with guns at Norfolk, Newport and, late in the war, Fort Fisher.

Enlisted early in 1861. Almost immediately contracted smallpox, lost the sight of one eye.

In 1863 in Newport hospital with chronic diarrhea when yellow fever epidemic broke out. "I was in a ward by myself at 10:30 a.m. by 12:30 the ward was filled and by 2 o'clock there were 13 corpses in the ward. The doctors simply didn't know what to do, how to treat yellow fever. I struggled out of the hospital and went down to the beach. Laid around there for more than a week, living on clams and oysters I picked up at low tide. Those little animals actually nursed me back to health."

While on a scout about this time 300 of the regiment were captured and sent to Andersonville prison. Only 32 survived. "All of our guns were muzzle loaders. Some of them were pretty accurate up to five miles. The old standby, the six pounder, was good up to a mile. After each shot one man would swab out the barrel with a wet sponge, another would put in the powder, already packaged in burlap, another man would ram home the ball. The gunner would aim the piece and touch it off with a lanyard. A hook at the end tore a hole in the burlap and touched off a percussion cap.

"In no way did I enjoy any part of the war."

ABRAMS, Capt. Charles Co. B, 27th Illinois Infantry. Meredosia.

Did not care to be interviewed. Born in Naples Nov. 20, 1839. Served three years, one month. Wounded, mustered out in 1864 as corporal. Pilot on river packet from St. Louis to Peoria for 45 years, hence title of Captain.

Shot in battle of Chicamauga, nearly died of gangrene. A very strong Republican, which is almost a curiosity in Meredosia.

Never hungry and never cold "because I wasn't too lazy to carry my rations, my blankets and extra clothing as so many of those G.A.R. bums were."

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Sentinel

Stirring events have occurred since our last issue. Richmond is in our possession after three days hard fighting, the southern Confederacy broken and her grand army defeated and scattered as fugitives before the victorious GRANT. This news should gladden the heart of every true friend of this country, as indicating an early end of the rebellion.

HORRIBLE — The steamer Gen. Lyon was burned a few days since, having on hand 200 discharged veterans of the 56th Illinois regiment. The steamer Gen. Sedgewick came to the assistance of the burning vessel, but owing to the gale and heavy seas, was only able to save a few men, including three of the discharged veterans.

The 56th Illinois regiment was made up of boys from the southern counties of the state. They organized at Camp Mather in September, 1861, and were soon hurried to the defense of Paducah, Ky.

They fought in the major battles in Kentucky, Tennessee and upper Mississippi, went with Sherman to the sea and were serving past their enlistment period when they were moving through North Carolina. There those who wanted to go home—12 officers and 193 enlisted men—were put aboard the Gen. Lyon. Only three of them survived.

The only worse marine accident during the Civil War was when the Sultana blew up on the Mississippi river a month later.

JACKSONVILLE MARKET—Shipments last week, 11 car loads of cattle, three car loads of hogs. Prices offered by shippers, for cattle, $8 to $8.50; hogs $9 to $9.50. No shipments of grain, prices nominal.

WINTER WHEAT—We learn from farmers that the prospect of a good harvest of winter wheat, in this vicinity, is flattering.

REAL ESTATE — Elizabeth M. Chambers sold to Lucy Lord, a lot in Bethel, for $150. Fleming Stevenson sold to Stephen Dunlap and F. G. Farrell his residence and part of his grounds on West State street, for $14,000.

Although the vice president announces himself a plebeian, he showed at the inauguration he had a good deal of the old Bourbon spirit in him.

WE WOULD ADVISE all good Union men and women to go immediately to Marine's and have their pictures taken, while the smile of joy and gladness over the fall of Richmond still lingers upon the face. (ADV.)

A GOOD IDEA — We have heard it suggested that the new Board of Town Trustees, in the distribution of offices within their trust, propose to select their appointees from among the returned soldiers who have, by their services in the front, given unquestioned proof of loyalty and patriotism, without reference to their former political positions. This is certainly a most patriotic and commendable policy, and we have no doubt the Board will find competent and worthy men on whom to bestow the trusts within their gift. It has been too often the case that the returned soldier has been made to stand aside for the stay-at-home aristocrat, though equally competent and more worthy.

HORSE BILLS—We are prepared to execute Horse and Jack bills, in a superior manner, and as cheap as any other office in the State. We have splendid cuts. Journal Job Office.

SEED POTATOES — A few barrels, in prime order, from Northern Illinois, for sale at the Insane Asylum. (ADV.)

From the Carrolton Gazette: A severe freeze on Thursday night of this week threatens the fruit prospects severely, but it is to be hoped that little damage is done. The pupils of Greenfield Seminary will give a public exhibition at Union Hall, Greenfield, Thursday and Friday evenings, April 13th and 14th inst.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Helderman of Greenfield and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Williams of White Hall, Sp/4 Helderman is with the 1st Armored Division stationed at Fort Hood, Texas.

We are informed that a few days hence, during the heavy rain, a young man, residing near Rockbridge, in this county, was drowned. The name, or any of the particulars, we did not learn.

If citizens would take the pains to furnish us with the PARTICULARS of such accidents we would endeavor to publish them for the benefit of our readers.

ASHLAND BOARD SELECTS SITE FOR NEW POOL

ASHLAND — A group of almost fifty interested citizens attended a public meeting Monday night at the high school concerning the proposed swimming pool. Four sites for the pool were discussed: West Park, James Park, the ball park, and a site just south of the old pool site.

Each site was discussed as to its availability, fire protection, access to utilities, vandalism, parking and objections by neighbors.

Many questions were asked and answered, after which a vote was taken of those present. The James Park site was favored by the majority in attendance.

Objections to West Park were: It could crowd the park since the tennis court, picnic tables, swings, etc. were already in that park, plus neighbor objections.

Objections in the ball park were: too far out of town; too far from a water line and vandalism.

The site uptown was objected to mainly because it was on railroad ground and a long-term lease probably could not be secured.

The Village board met in a special session after a discussion concerning the swimming pool, voted to accept the pool, with the operation to be under a board of managers or commission.

Harvey Creed made a motion, seconded by H. A. Votsmier, to place the proposed pool in James' Park.

After all necessary funds are secured, plans drawn up and approved by the State, bids on the construction of the pool, the pool can be started. Actual construction will take approximately six weeks, weather permitting.

Pint-Sized Sheikdom Arab World's Rich Uncle

By WEBB MCKINLEY
KUWAIT (AP) — They say you can't buy happiness, but Kuwait is giving it a good try.

This pint-sized sheikdom producing more than two million barrels of oil daily for the Western market, proudly calls itself a welfare state. It's more than that. Kuwait has become a rich uncle for the Arab world.

Kuwait has no unwilling unemployed. The state will clothe a citizen's children and send them to school and even college, and pay for all the family medical expenses. A visiting businessman with a toothache can get a free dentist, and a nomad with a sick camel can get a free veterinarian.

This is the state where 65,000 of the 400,000 inhabitants are civil servants, and where try as it may it never manages to spend all of its more than $600 million yearly oil income.

Kuwait is not so well-known as dispenser of Arab aid and the player of power politics. Through 1964 the sheikdom has given or promised loans to Arab countries and organizations totaling more than $470 million.

About $100 million of this has been committed by the Kuwait fund for Arab economic development, unique in the Arab world. Set up in 1961, the fund aims "to assist the Arab states in developing their economies" by granting long-term loans at three to four per cent interest.

It has lent the United Arab Republic $27.5 million to deepen the Suez Canal and enlarge Port Said harbor; Sudan $19.5 million to modernize its railways; Jordan $8.4 million to open a phosphate mine and $490,000 to help finance a luxury hotel on the Mount of Olives; Tunisia $5.6 million for an irrigation project. Other loans have clear political aims. These are handouts from Kuwait's huge general reserve to prop up a regime's sagging budget, or simply to win friendship.

A loan of $84 million to neighboring Iraq, whose late dictator Kassem once threatened to annex Kuwait, seemed like a payoff for security.

One loan of $78.4 million has been made to the United Arab Republic, another of $84 million has been strongly rumored and a third may be coming. These can help tide Gamal Abdel Nasser over bad economic times, and keep him friendly.

Kuwait donated more than $30 million to the Palestine Liberation Organization, a body dedicated at September's Arab summit meeting to eliminating Israel and returning the Arabs to Palestine. The grant has been coupled with an unpublished agreement allowing soldiers to train in Kuwait.

Diplomats find an erosion of Western influence here. It can be seen in the Palestine action, in Kuwait's headlong reaction against West Germany in the flareup over Israel, and in a recent trade and technical aid agreement with the Soviet Union.

The Kuwaitis, who need trade and technical advice from the Soviet Union as badly as they need another oil well, will not divulge details of the agreement. No one would be surprised if it entailed the arrival of Soviet irrigation experts in connection with a project to pipe waters of Iraq's Shat Al Arab River into the sheikdom. "Yes, we are a unique country," says Al Hamad. "We're not unique in progress or schools or hospitals. You might even say we're underdeveloped. But we do not suffer from lack of means."

Ninety-seven per cent of the world's water is too salty to drink.

Have We Got TGE Whipped? Ristic Thinks Maybe So

URBANA — University of Illinois Swine Day visitors heard some pointers for combatting swine TGE from the man who has paved the way for complete control of the costly disease.

That man is Dr. Miodrag Ristic of the U. of I. College of Veterinary Medicine, first researcher to isolate and photograph the deadly TGE virus. Ristic has developed a killed vaccine that is now under field test.

The vaccine may be available commercially by next winter. It is injected into the sow, and the TGE antibodies are passed to the baby pigs through her milk.

"The new vaccine should not be looked upon as the complete solution to the TGE problem," Ristic explained. "It looks now as if sows will need injections before every farrowing period for complete protection."

Researchers are already working to develop a live vaccine that may offer longer, more complete protection. However, the live vaccine may not be available for several years.

Ristic said the optimum time for immunization with the killed vaccine will be about five to six weeks before farrowing, since tests show that the TGE antibodies are most numerous about five weeks after the sow receives the vaccine.

"The pigs have to consume the milk in order to stay healthy," Ristic explained. "If pigs nursing a vaccinated sow are switched to milk from a unimmunized sow, they will contract TGE within a day."

In outlining his most recent research efforts against TGE, Ristic said studies indicate that other animals besides hogs may be responsible for maintaining the TGE infection on a farm.

"Our latest experiments indicate that dogs may rank among the most important TGE carriers on the farm," Ristic explained. "In fact, in recent experiments we have observed that dogs may actually grow the virus in their guts after they have taken TGE."

"We aren't sure yet, but it looks as if cats might be involved too," Ristic added. "And some previous work here indicated that starlings might be incriminated."

Ristic pointed out that humans are probably much more responsible for spreading TGE than any other animal.

"In cold weather, farmers who are not careful often carry the virus on their boots from farrowing house to farrowing house or, for that matter, from farm to farm," he said.

The U. of I. scientist offered a number of pointers for combatting TGE in the swine herd. He gave four important steps to follow in case of an outbreak:

1. Keep pens clean. Hygiene is extremely important in fighting a TGE outbreak. Clean pens regularly with hot water or disinfectant.

2. Try to boost the temperature in the farrowing house. U. of I. research shows that the TGE virus is extremely heat-sensitive. If your pigs can stand temperatures of 80 to 85 degrees, or even higher, keep the houses that warm.

3. Increase the light in your farrowing house. The Illinois research shows that the TGE virus is also light-sensitive. Make sure all windows in the farrowing barn are unobstructed. Let as much light as possible into the building.

4. Take sick pigs out of the pen. They will probably die anyway. While they are in the pen, they can spread the infection further. Of course, all dead pigs should be removed as soon as possible.

Ristic warned that immunizing sows by feeding them in intestines from pigs killed by TGE may actually spread the disease.

"It's a risky practice," he said. "And for all the risk involved, it doesn't seem to give immunity for longer than one or, at the maximum, two farrowing periods."

"Of course, this practice has other tremendous hazards too, not only for you but for your neighbors," Ristic added. "You are bound to introduce many other infections in addition to TGE."

More than half a million dollars was spent in Tobago on road and bridge improvements in 1964.

Beardstown, State Anticipate Impact Of Packing Plant

By Virgil Reither

BEARDSTOWN — Enormity of the impact of a new $5 million industry on the Beardstown area can hardly be visualized at this time, but plenty of people are thinking about it just the same.

The decision of the Oscar Mayer Packing company of Madison, Wis., to locate one of its first new hog slaughtering complexes a mile east of Beardstown has certainly excited the imagination of Beardstownians.

The far-reaching ramifications of the industrial boom will undoubtedly touch many facets of the community not yet considered.

Employment, schools, related and unrelated businesses, housing, sewage disposal — all these subjects and others will be coped with as the need arises.

But real basis of the business is hogs, and the furnishing of at least 2,500 to 3,000 of them to the packing company for slaughtering and processing daily.

Many people in Beardstown and its environs are aware of the fact that this is a hog producing center, but the fact remains that the local plant probably will reach far beyond the confines of Illinois for its "basic material" — the well-fed porker.

But the farmers of this area intend to furnish their share and many individual farmers have already indicated they plan to enlarge and improve their hog facilities.

Today's hog raiser has little or no proximity to the farmer of 25 years ago who had a few runty pigs running at large on his farm scrounging for hickory nuts in the timber and generally "slopped" in the confines of a small "pig pen."

Demand for better bred and better fed pigs of proper size and weight distribution has brought about the development of a wise and efficient hog raiser, and many of them have expanded production line methods at great cost and effort in time on their farms.

Hog Production Doubles
Hog production in Illinois has doubled in the past 40 years, and has been growing faster than in the nation as a whole. Illinois farmers boosted their share of the nation's hog business from 8.2 percent in 1929 to 14 percent in 1964.

According to Farm Adviser Russell Meredith Cass county has followed the trend of the rest of the state and especially the other 12 counties in the West Southwest part of the state by increasing pork production 35% in the past 10 years. The production in this area now runs to 2 1/2 million head annually. Mr. Meredith says that production in Cass county increased from 64,700 to 101,000 head annually since 1954.

And pork production has become a more specialized business. The traditional March-September farrowings are almost a thing of the past. "Multiple farrowings have become standard operations on many farms," said the Farm Adviser. "Farmers now farrow 4 to 6 times annually and this provides a more even flow of butcher hogs to market."

Keen interest in carcass quality has developed during the past 5 to 8 years and farmers are now taking advantage of obtaining carcass data to determine quality.

A carcass class has become a part of the Cass county 4-H show. All hogs are slaughtered and cut-out data is obtained on each animal.

The results of this attention to quality is reflected in the fact that at a recent show in Springfield 4 of the top 12 animals were shown by Cass county producers.

Pork Fans All
So interested in the production of quality meat have Cass county farmers become that they

That will be in September of 1966 if all goes well.

Meanwhile the city officials and Chamber of Commerce are moving forward with plans involving financing and location of the secondary sewage disposal plant which is Beardstown's problem as a "share of the bargain" arrangement.

Complete Bridge Over Mud Creek In Cass County

BEARDSTOWN — Hager Township Road Commissioner Dick Knight has announced the completion of a new cement bridge over Mud Creek on the Boulevard road about five miles south of Beardstown.

Cass County Superintendent of Highways Bob Phelps and Jones Brothers cooperated in the construction and engineering of the $26,000 bridge which replaces an antiquated wooden bridge no longer wide enough to allow passage of modern machinery, Knight said.

It is a prefabricated bridge made of 20 ton slabs of concrete which Jones Brothers, using two large cranes, laid in place on piling, girders and a cement "cap."

Other work on highways in the county includes a project now underway at the direction of Beardstown Township Road Commissioner Sam Campbell which involves elimination of a hazardous condition on the Boulevard road near the Bob Hess farm. The road had been a danger to traffic due to a curve and an incline, both of which are being eliminated.

Authorities say that visibility will be much better on the road when this project is finished shortly.

To Reduce Hazards
One of the most important and expensive projects on the boards at this time in Cass county is the improvement of the Chandlerville - Beardstown blacktop east of this city. Highway Superintendent Phelps has conducted hearings with land owners along the highway to get their suggestions regarding methods of eliminating two hazards near the bridges adjacent the Wilbur Meyer and Charles Unland farms.

It is proposed to "raise" the road at these points to improve visibility, and also to widen the roadway for a distance of several miles.

It is also expected that the unusually "high crown" on the road, considered a hazard for years, will be eliminated.

ILLINOIS OUTLOOK LETTER

HOG PRODUCTION CUT 8 PERCENT

Hog producers get especially important reports four times each year. These are the USDA Pig Crop Reports, which are issued near the end of each quarter.

These reports are based upon questionnaires mailed in by hog producers. They contain several pages of important statistics, including the number of pigs and hogs on hand March 1, their weights, and farmers' intentions concerning hog production during the next 12 months. Here are some of the most important facts from the report that was released in Washington late in March.

We can summarize the information in the Pig Crop Report by saying that farmers have cut hog production by 8 percent and intend to cut spring and summer farrowings by the same amount.

On March 1 farmers in 10 corn-belt states had 37.8 million pigs and hogs, 8 percent less than one year before. The reduction in numbers was well divided among all weight groups.

All Weight Groups Down
The number of market hogs weighing 220 pounds and over totaled one million, 8 percent less than a year earlier. Most of those hogs have been sold by now.

The number weighing 180 to 220 pounds totaled 4.6 million, 4 percent less than the year before. The largest share of these hogs will move in April.

Hogs weighing 120 to 180 pounds were estimated at 7.8 million, 6 percent below the previous year. Most of these hogs will reach market weights from mid-April to the end of May.

The number of shoats weighing 60 to 120 pounds was listed at 6.8 million, 10 percent less than in 1964. This group will be marketed mostly in June and July.

Pigs weighing under 60 pounds were listed at 10.7 million head, 9 percent less than a year earlier. Most of these pigs will make market hogs in August and September.

Smaller Pig Crops
The December-February pig crop in 10 states totaled 11.5 million, 8 percent less than the year before.

The number of sows bred and intended for farrowing in the spring quarter (March-May) was 3.2 million, 8 percent less than a year ago.

Reports from hog producers indicated that they would have 2.1 million sows to farrow during the summer quarter (June-August). This would be 8 percent less than during the same three months last year.

If hog production is being cut as indicated in the government report, hog prices should average about $2.00 higher during the next 12 months than they did a year earlier. That would make the average for barrows and gilts at central markets about $18.00.

THE STORY: Lt. Barcello points out to Clay Belden that because Belden did not prosecute Howard Gould for embezzlement Belden was compounding a felony. The embezzlement took place when Gould was Belden's partner.

XVIII

"I thought I was being lenient on Howie," Clay said. "Howard Gould didn't think so. He'd intended all along to put the money back—all embezzlers do. Afterward his feeling toward you was pretty severe because you'd forced him to make good in a lump sum, then booted him out. No other firm would take him on. He believed that you'd warned other business men against him."

"I hadn't." "Like most crooks, he blamed everyone but himself. He ignored the fact that he'd put you into a bind. Your work load has been doubled because you haven't replaced him."

"Taking Howie as a lesson, I'm being careful." "Naturally. And naturally a great deal of resentment developed between you."

Clay leaned forward earnestly. "Whatever you're getting at, I had no energy to waste on resenting Howie. He was an emotionally sick man. Even so, there must be a limit to your forbearance."

"Now just what do you mean by that?"

Clay cautioned himself again: take it easy. "On the night of the homicide, Mr. Belden, you were driving back from Atlanta."

"You know that."

"And what time was it when you arrived at this house?"

"I told you before, about 12:30."

"For a reason I'm about to explain. It wasn't 12:30 but about 11 o'clock when you turned off the boulevard in this direction. At that point, when you were still near the corner, you saw a dark-colored car backing out of this driveway. You were more than half a block away then, so you didn't recognize it. As it passed you, the glare was out of your eyes for a moment. You may or may not have seen the driver, but you did recognize the woman sitting beside him. She was your wife, Cynthia."

"Lieutenant, you're as far off the beam as you can get. Cynthia denies there was any such car. She denies she left the house that night."

Barcello went on as if he hadn't heard. "You were naturally startled because you'd caught your wife leaving your home with a man at that time of the night. You turned around and began following them."

"You began to run into fog, but you could still follow the other car's taillights easily. You saw it pull up at a motel, and you stopped at the side of the road, at a safe distance back, and watched. Details were blurred or lost in the fog, but you could be sure your wife and the man had gone into one of the motel rooms together."

Clay slumped back in angry resignation. "This is pure fantasy—not one word of truth in it!"

"Your wife came out of that same room, hurrying, frightened—and recognizable now. She'd gone there by prearrangement, but suddenly she seemed desperate to get away, as if she'd gotten herself into more than she'd bargained for. There was an outdoor phone booth on the corner of the lot. She ran to it and began making a call—a call for help to someone she could ask to come and take her away."

The motel manager, Snively, had told Clay about that incident, and of course Snively had told Barcello earlier.

"Last year the telephone company in Palmport extended its service area. It wouldn't have been a toll call."

"I remember now." "Certainly it wasn't your wife called, Mr. Belden. You weren't at home. In any case she would not have called you. The call may or may not have been completed. But I think it was."

"To get back, your wife was still inside the booth when Howard Gould came out of the room looking for her. He pulled her out of the booth and back into the room. You saw this. You came on, and in the parking lot of the motel you found two cars."

Barcello was assuming—and assuming on a most uncertain basis—that both cars had been there at the same time.

"The nearer of the two cars, a black sedan, had a letter E on the license plate, meaning it was rented."

"You mean it was the car rented by David Tancred. I still think it's just too much of a coincidence, David's being there at this same motel when—"

"So far as the circumstances indicate, he took no part in any of this. The important thing is that you immediately recognized the other car. It was Howard Gould's."

gave us a bottom score on the final hand.

"When my partner passed West's five club bid around to me I was sure that he would hold but a singleton club. Of course, I could have doubled and beaten five clubs two tricks for plus 300 but that would have been the same zero I was handed for down one at five hearts. At every other table South played four hearts and made an overtrick. Not poor me! I played five hearts down one."

It seems that West decided to go all out and try to beat the five heart contract. Hence, he opened his singleton diamond. The unlucky expert won in his own hand and led a small heart toward dummy but West had made his plans and was not going to let anyone upset them. He rose with the ace and underled his ace of clubs. If South happened to hold the club king he would romp off with the rest of the tricks, but as usual it was not the unlucky expert's day. East won the club trick and led back a diamond for West to ruff.

Most of the time I don't sympathize with the unlucky expert. He has the faculty of doing most unfortunate things with the best of reasons. This time he was stone cold dead the moment West bid five clubs and worked out the winning defense.

Jack Baseballers Claim 10-0 Opener

LEWISTOWN — An 11-hit attack highlighted by a four-for-four performance by Creston Whitaker and a two-hit pitching chore by a trio of moundsmen spurred Jacksonville to an easy 10-0 whitewash over Lewistown Friday afternoon, in the Crimsons' diamond opener for the year.

Joe Wilkerson allowed a single for his three innings, Larry Samples a single in a three-frame workout and John Dean finished up with a perfect seventh inning, striking out two.

Whitaker had a perfect day at the plate, singling in the second and sixth frames and doubling in the third and fourth, and scoring a pair of runs.

Center fielder Ron Coleman collected two hits in three official turns, one a booming home run in the first inning, and third baseman Dennis Wegehoff went two for four.

The Crimsons got the only run they needed in the opening frame, on Coleman's roundtripper after two were out.

A big five-run second inning iced the contest. Larry Welch started off the frame by drawing a walk, followed by Whitaker's first hit. Jerry Suttles reached base on an error and following a strikeout, Wilkerson worked Lewistown for another free pass.

Gary Zimmer singled in a run as did Wegehoff, and Coleman scored another on a sacrifice fly to the outfield.

Two more runs scored in the third on Welch's single, a double by Whitaker and two-base Lewistown miscue. A single run was counted in the fourth on a Coleman single and Whitaker's second straight two-base blow.

The final tally came in the sixth on singles by Wegehoff, Jim Woods and Whitaker's fourth straight safety.

Koufax Disabled Again

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Injury-plagued Sandy Koufax was back on the disabled roll Friday and there was no way to tell when the Los Angeles Dodgers' pitching star would be ready to return to action.

"Sandy is suffering from a traumatic arthritic condition of his left elbow which tends to flare up under constant stress," said the team physician, Dr. Robert Kerlan, after examining the stiff and swollen elbow.

Koufax's chances of pitching the opening game against the Mets in New York on April 12 appear dim.

"Sandy will remain here three to four days," Dr. Kerlan said. "It is too early to tell what the results of the treatment will be, and it is also too early to tell when he will pitch again."

"I am going to be neither overly optimistic nor overly pessimistic at this time."

Brock Setting Goals Higher In New Season

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Lou Brock of the champion St. Louis Cardinals hopes they keep on calling him a butcher in the outfield. It makes the baserunners take more chances and helps him pile up the assists.

"When they talked about the problems of playing left field at Yankee Stadium in the World Series last fall I wasn't worried," said Brock. "Those people must not have seen right field at Wrigley Field in Chicago. That's where I got my reputation as a butcher. The wind and shadows out there are tough."

"But I love that tag of butcher. Each year I finish second or third in assists. As long as they think I am a butcher they are going to keep on trying to run."

Brock, the man most responsible for the Cardinals' second-half spurt to the pennant last season, is a disciple of positive thinking. He believes his fine 1964 season was just the beginning.

"When the Cards traded for me last summer I couldn't figure out why they were trading two established players, Ernie Broglio and Bobby Shantz for me," said Brock. "I guess the change was good for me."

"I always set goals for myself, distant goals. If I come close I figure I had a good year. Last year, I wanted to hit .320 and steal 45 bases. I wound up with .315 and 43 stolen bases. This time I'm setting goals that some guys think are crazy — .330 and 60 stolen bases."

Brock is the impetuous type who needs to curb his impatience. He often goes for the bad pitch.

"I've got to teach myself patience," he said. "I struck out 127 times."

The 25-year-old speed demon doesn't think he has a chance to win the stolen base crown from Maury Wills of the Dodgers.

"The only guy with a chance for that would be Willie Davis of the Dodgers," said Brock. "They have to run more than us because they don't have the power hitters. I steal second base but almost never third."

Makeshift Sox Down A's, 11-4

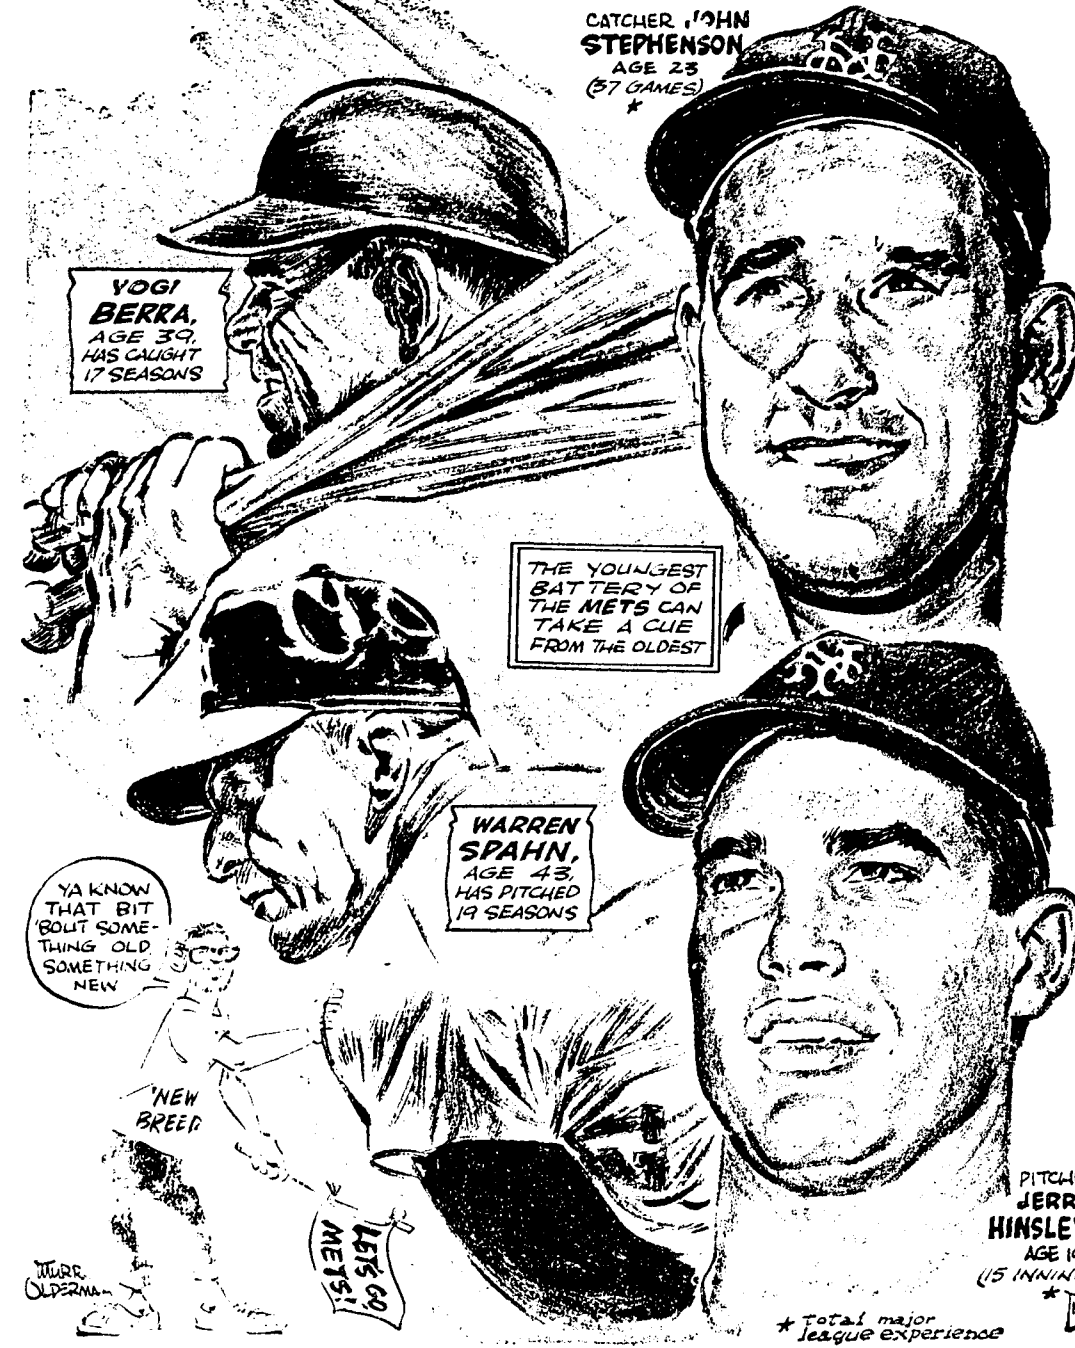

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — A makeshift Chicago White Sox lineup scored an 11-4 victory over the Kansas City A's Friday.

J. C. Martin contributed two triples and Don Buford, Jim Hick and Tom McCraw chipped in one each to a 15-hit attack for Chicago.

Tom Reynolds clouted a three-run homer off Carl Boulton, who pitched the first six innings and gained credit for the victory.

Most of the Chicago regulars went to Jacksonville to play Cincinnati in a night game.

Yankee Star Denies Assault, Battery

PORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—New York Yankee outfielder Roger Maris faced an assault and battery charge here Friday as a result of a tavern ruckus in which he is accused of belting a patron. Maris denied it.

"I didn't do it," the $72,000-a-year home run record holder insisted after posting $200 bond.

Game Wardens Try To Prevent Duck Shooting

BEARDSTOWN — Residents of the Sangamon Valley area east of Beardstown say that during the past two weeks both federal and state game wardens have been patrolling to prevent the unlawful shooting of ducks which seem to be here in unusually great numbers for this time of year.

Planes and cars, radios and walkie talkies are being used in the efforts to protect the wildfowl, the Sangamon farmers say. While few ducks are being killed, according to reports there have been no definite reports of arrests.

Thousands of fat mallards are frequenting the harvested cornfields these afternoons.

Last week a field near the Bowman clubhouse just over the Phelps Ditch bridge was so thick with mallards it was difficult to see the ground. The ducks paid little attention to cars along the nearby road. Scores of other cornfields also were being "picked clean" by the ducks.

Due to these circumstances, it is reported that a few shoot-outs have been out after the birds. Of course this is court-ing arrest and heavy fines, for the duck season has been over for months.

Right now, some observers say, there are more ducks in the Beardstown area than there were during the regular season. Mostly Mallards are seen in the cornfields, but the fish eating bluebills and heldivers are also much in evidence on the open water.

Motorists crossing the Illinois river bridge here get sight of great congregations of small ducks, mostly bluebills, resting on the Curry Lake expanse. Other flocks inhabit the Myers pond area.

One local duck hunter enthusiast also reported seeing many geese—about 5,000 he estimated—one day a week ago.

Other Bird-Pests

While large numbers of people are delighted to have the ducks in the area—they are beautiful to watch—the prevalence of starlings, crows and blackbirds has also been noted. Many farmers regard these flocks without enthusiasm, and there have been some discussions about organizing "crow hunts" to rid the area of at least some of the birds.

Freese's Homer Thwarts Dodgers And Drysdale

Gene Freese's three-run homer off reliever Howie Reed gave Pittsburgh a 3-2 exhibition baseball victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday after right-hander Don Drysdale had throttled the Pirates for seven innings.

Drysdale, who will carry the brunt of Los Angeles' pitching load in the absence of ailing Sandy Koufax, gave way to Reed in the eighth after blanking Pittsburgh on eight scattered hits. Reed walked Dick Schofield and Bob Bailey before Freese delivered the deciding homer.

Roberto Clemente played in his first game for the Pirates since reporting late after an illness. The National League batting champion went hitless in two at-bats.

Willis Mays hit two home runs in San Francisco's 6-4 victory over Cleveland and Don Demeter crashed a pair of homers in Detroit's 10-1 romp over Washington. Dick McAuliffe and Al Kaline also homered for the Tigers behind left-hander Hank Aguirre, who held the Senators to two hits in seven innings.

The Chicago White Sox B squad rattled Kansas City 11-4 with a 15-hit attack that included five triples — two by J. C. Martin. Tom Reynolds hit a three-run homer for the Athletics.

Tony Conigliaro's home run keyed a three-run ninth-inning rally that lifted Boston past the Chicago Cubs 5-4. Bob Tillman also homered for the Red Sox. Florida night games matched the White Sox varsity and Cincinnati at Jacksonville, Houston and Minnesota at Orlando, Philadelphia and Milwaukee at West Palm Beach, the New York Mets and St. Louis at St. Petersburg and the New York Yankees and Baltimore at Miami.

Alston Hot On Dodgers New Look

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Walter Alston has been spreading the gospel of speed and pitching around the Los Angeles Dodger training camp all spring.

The Dodger manager has been preaching that the best defense is the best offense, neither of which the club displayed all last year.

That's why the Dodgers traded Frank Howard, their only blockbuster, to Washington last winter for glue-fingered John Kennedy, a .230 hitting third baseman, and Claude Osteen, a 15-game winning southpaw.

Osteen strengthens the club's strongest department and, when combined with Don Drysdale, Sandy Koufax and John Podres, the staff could be one of the most powerful ever assembled. The fact that three of the Big Four are left-handers is another plus factor.

Add to these four starters two talented and experienced bullpen stars like Ron Perranoski and Bob Miller, and such middle men as Jim Brewer, Howard Reed and Ron Moeller.

These combinations convince Alston his club can rebound from last year's sixth-place tie into a strong pennant contender.

Aids Healthy Again

"I've seen enough of Koufax and Podres this spring to feel assured that they are healthy again," said Alston. "If they remain sound, it could be the best staff ever assembled."

Koufax suffered an inflamed elbow and missed the last six weeks of last season, but he won 19. Podres did not win any. He had to undergo an elbow operation early in the season.

Alston also is banking on a better defense. Kennedy figures to do better at third base than any of the six third basemen tried last year. With the departure of Howard, Alston has two youngsters, Derrell Griffith and Al Ferrara, for platoon duty there.

The rest of the cast is the same with the exception of second base where 21-year-old Jim Lefebvre, a product of Spokane, will open the season. The youngster, a switch hitter, has been the sensation of the camp.

"I think we can come up with more hitting this year," said Alston. "We have every reason to believe that Tommy Davis will hit better than his .275 of last year. After all, he led the majors in hitting two straight years before that."

"Also Maury Wills should get on base more. He fell off to .275 last season after two straight .300 years. The figures show that when Wills gets on base, the Dodgers score."

Bears Announce NFL Schedule

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Bears announced their 1965 National Football League schedule Thursday. The first three games will be on the road before the Bears return to their Wrigley Field home base to meet the Los Angeles Rams Oct. 10.

The road trip takes them to San Francisco Sept. 19, to Los Angeles for a night game Sept. 25 and to Green Bay Oct. 3.

The Bears meet six Western Division foes in home-and-home series and also face two Eastern Division opponents, the St. Louis Cardinals at Wrigley Field and the Giants at New York Nov. 28.

The Cardinals will be making their first Wrigley Field appearance since they shifted from Chicago to St. Louis five years ago.

"The Western Division race is wide open and every game shapes up as a struggle," said George Halas of the Bears. "The Giants are always tough, and the Cards probably were the top team in pro football at the end of last season."

The Bears home slate includes a formidable four-game stand from Oct. 24 through Nov. 14 in games with Detroit, Green Bay, Baltimore and St. Louis.

LUCKY DEBONAIR PREPS LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — Lucky Debonair, cofavorite in the winter books for the Kentucky Derby, arrived at Keeneland Friday to prep for the May 1 classic at Churchill Downs at nearby Louisville.

Lucky Debonair, owned by Mrs. Ada L. Rice, has won four of six starts. He is co-favored at $2.75. Today it costs about 25 cents for derby honors with Bold Lad.

NEA Sports Editorial

Spring training began so early for the Houston Astros that year (Feb. 21) that it was still winter in Florida.

One pitcher complained ice was forming on his spitter.

By the time the regular season finally opens in mid-April, a major league manager will have had as much as 50 days in which to create a team — that's seven times longer than stringing out its overall exposure to insure a more pishy time of it for participants.

But newspapers have been crammed with training accounts almost since Washington's Birthday. Every time Casey Stengel grew another wrinkle it was duly recorded in the public prints.

Far as we can determine, only the rookies benefit by lengthy spring training. It helps them mature.

One of them was saying the other day: "When training started I couldn't even spell Gillette. By the time it's over I'll be shaving with it."

Matson Sets Mark In Discus And Shot

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Randy Matson, Texas A&M sophomore, hung up his second record in the Texas Relays Friday when he hurled the discus 188 feet 8 inches.

Matson earlier Friday threw the shot 65-9 to set his first record.

Matson's discus throw, coming in the preliminaries, surpassed the Texas Relays record of 180-2 set by Al Oerter of Kansas in 1958.

Bobby May of Rice topped the 120-yard high hurdles record, but it was not allowed because of a six miles per hour favoring wind. The allowable is only 4.47 miles per hour.

May ran the hurdles in 13.8. The record is 13.9, set by Fred Wolcott of Rice in 1939.

Matson, who last week set a collegiate record of 60'9", made his throw in the preliminaries and will have a crack at the world's record of 67-10 Saturday.

His tosses in the preliminaries were 60-5, 62-9, and 65-9, all three smashed the meet record of 59-9.

Matson set the only record in a morning session that included preliminaries in six relays, the 440-yard hurdles and the shot.

Jim Mace of Arkansas led the way in the 440-yard hurdles with 53.3.

Baylor and Oklahoma State did the mile relay in 3:10.4.

Texas Western won the college division 440-yard relay in 40.9 and paced 880-yard relay qualifiers with 1:25.0.

Texas Southern ran the college mile relay in 3:13.6 for the best preliminary time.

McCarver Injury Worrying Cards

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — "If anything happens to Tim McCarver, the Cardinals are in deep trouble."

That is what the wise baseball birds have been chirping all winter, for the world champions are thin in the catching department behind young Timmy.

Well, something did happen to McCarver. He suffered a broken right index finger in an exhibition game. Tim has been walking around with the finger in a cast, able to hit and run but unable to throw. He should be ready any minute. The other day he grabbed a bat and won a game with a pinch hit.

"What a way for a catcher to get a broken finger," said McCarver. "Having a fellow step on it. I was trying to break up a double play against the Dodgers when their new second baseman, Jim Lefebvre, came down on my hand. We didn't know it was broken until a week later."

"My idea is to go as hard as you can for as long as you can," said Tim. "I'm willing to catch all 162 games if they want. If somebody else does a better job, then I'll be the second string catcher."

"The only goal I have is to win another pennant. If we win again and I hit only .240 that will be all right. But, if I hit only .240 our chances of winning again won't be too good."

"There is no danger of anybody feeling satisfied with himself on this club. We just did make it last year and everybody knows there is a lot of money to be made if you can keep on winning. It's hard to get on top and hard to stay on top but that is where the money is."

Jackson Tabled To Hurl Opener Against Champs

MESA, Ariz. (AP) — Larry Jackson, veteran right-handed Chicago Cub hurler who led the majors last season with 24 victories, was named Friday to start the season in Chicago April 12 against the St. Louis Cardinals.

Jackson's selection by Bob Kennedy, head coach, came as no surprise. Kennedy also named left-hander Dick Ellisworth and right-handers Bob Buhl and Cal Koonce for early pitching assignments.

Ellisworth will oppose the Cardinals on April 13 and Buhl on the 14th.

Kennedy indicated Doug Clemens probably would rate an edge over Len Gabrielson as the starting right fielder.

The head coach also said that pitcher Ernie Broglio may remain in Mesa after the team departs for Chicago. Kennedy said this would give Broglio a chance to continue pitching for the Cubs' farm teams in better weather.

Broglio underwent surgery on his pitching arm in November. Kennedy said Broglio would join his teammates in Chicago during opening week.

Leafs Hope For History Repeat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

They opened with a loss, but the Toronto Maple Leafs hope it's a case of history repeating itself.

The Leafs, gunning for their fourth straight Stanley Cup, were trimmed by the Montreal Canadiens 3-2 as the National Hockey League playoffs opened Thursday night. In the other semifinal opener, the Detroit Red Wings topped the Chicago Black Hawks 4-3 at Detroit.

A year ago, also at the Montreal Forum, Toronto bowed to the Canadiens 2-0 in the first game of their semifinal. But the Leafs rebounded and took the series four games to three, then defeated Detroit in the seven-game final.

GENTILE FINED $500

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — First baseman Jim Gentile was fined $500 Friday by the Kansas City Athletics for an obscene gesture made in Thursday's exhibition game at Bradenton.

Gentile, who has not been hitting well this season, hit a homer in the second inning against Washington. As he was rounding third he made an obscene gesture at fans who had been heckling him.

In George Washington's time, a pound of sugar cost at least $2.75. Today it costs about 25 cents.

Two underdogs with momentum take on two well-rested, but competitively rusty favorites this weekend as the National Basketball Association playoffs go into their second stage.

Wilt Chamberlain leads the Philadelphia 76ers against the Boston Celtics in the first game of the Eastern Division finals Sunday at Boston. Saturday night at Los Angeles, the Baltimore Bullets play the Los Angeles Lakers in the opener of the Western finals.

Both are best-of-seven series. The winners meet in another seven-game set for the title, which the Celtics have won the past six years in a row.

Boston and Los Angeles have been idle for two weeks after finishing first in their respective divisions for the regular season. The 76ers and Bullets have been busy — and impressive.

Philadelphia whipped Cincinnati three games to one in the Eastern semifinals and Baltimore did the same to St. Louis in the West.

INVITATION

FOR BUILDING PROPOSAL ON

COUNTY OFFICE SPACE

The Brown County ASC Committee Chairman, Everett H. Wort announced today that the County ASC Office requirements necessitate its relocation in order to better serve the farmers of this community. Mr. Wort stated that the primary factors are to provide better service and location with adequate parking facilities and efficient floor plan arrangement. The Committee will receive proposals to provide suitable office facilities at their office in the basement of the Post Office, 130 West Main Street, in Mt. Sterling, Ill. through April 22, 1965.

Persons interested in providing office space for the ASC organization should be able to offer a building site adjacent to a principal street or highway, easily accessible to the farmers in all parts of the county, as well as an office building constructed in accordance with existing building codes and further specifications which will be available to interested parties at the county ASC Office. The terrain shall be such as to preclude possibility of flooding from streams or ground water.

MR. EVERETT H. WORT,

Chairman Brown County ASC Committee.
